

Host a Live Lightly Movie Screening

A great way to introduce new topics, start conversations or fundraise is to host a screening of an uplifting and thought provoking movie – at your place with friends or at a local venue in your community.

Things to consider:

- Venue – how many people do you expect, some community venues have cosy or larger spaces. Some cinemas can be booked for fundraisers too
- Getting there – try to choose places people can easily get to by public transport, walking or cycling. Encourage carpooling for those further afield
- Invitation – is it just for your mates, or are there any community leaders, key local business people or politicians you want there? Consider co-presenting with another organisation for further networking opportunities or partnerships
- Licence – generally an educational or community screening where the projector is in the same room as the screen applies to DVDs/digital material. If going to a cinema they will advise on the licence and format required
- Nourishment - the mind and body need equal attention, ideally choose plant-based options that won't create waste, encourage BYO cups or provide washable ones
- Timing – some movies are nearly two hours long so an early start allows time to set the scene first and/or discussion and interaction afterwards
- Introductions – keep them brief! Have someone introduce the film and/or your group but save conversations for after or invite people to stay on an “after event”
- Bump time – invite people to talk to someone that they don't already know and find out why they are there, what they hope to get from the film
- Harvest ideas – give people paper and ask them to write one thing they have been inspired by or will do. Put them up for everyone to see

- Celebrate – acknowledge and rejoice in what is already happening in your community, you may invite local groups along or food suppliers to have stalls
- After the film – if your goal is to activate change, prompt people to form groups and make plans for local action. Get contact details if you want to follow up with people.

Suggested Movies	Summary	Available from
Edible Paradise (2018)	Captured over five years as part of the Localising Food Project, Edible Paradise travels Aotearoa to meet local food campaigners vital in creating community orchard and food forest projects in their patch.	hello@livelightly.nz with licence for a community screening
Living the Change (2017)	Documentary showing what motivates New Zealanders and the choices they are making to instigate change.	hello@livelightly.nz with licence for a community screening
Tomorrow (2016)	Inspirational local community actions from around the world covering agriculture, transport, energy, education and economy. Includes subtitles.	Auckland Libraries or hello@livelightly.nz with license for a community screening
Before the Flood (2016)	Leonard DiCaprio's three-year journey exploring the subject of climate change.	Free to view
The Third Industrial Revolution: A Radical New Sharing Economy (2017)	A documentary by social and economic theorist Jeremy Rifkin lays out a road map to usher in a new economic system.	Free to view
This Changes Everything (2015)	Capitalism vs. climate. Based on the book by Naomi Klein.	On demand
Ever The Land (2015)	Explores the sublime bond between people and their land through a landmark architectural undertaking by one of New Zealand's most passionately independent Māori tribes, Ngāi Tūhoe.	Request a screening

Note: We know there are other films on climate change and sustainability available, however where possible we have selected those that are local, free, uplifting and accessible to a general audience, with a positive approach to community action.

livelightly.nz | facebook.com/livelightlyakl | hello@livelightly.nz